

Celebrity chefs visit Wexford fair

CELEBRITY CHEFS Nevin Maguire and Phelim Byrne will both lend their support to a Wexford food fair, organised by St. Iberius' parents' fundraising committee.

Chef Nevin Maguire

Wexford is famed for its variety and quality of locally grown food and the food fair has been organised as a way to counteract the doom and gloom and inject some colour, and some taste, into a community event.

Both master chefs are renowned as vocal champions of locally produced and sourced food, and will use their on-stage cookery demonstrations, throughout the fair, to show how quality local products can be turned into delicious dishes.

Mr. Maguire is presently on RTE with a new show on Wednesday nights, Food from the Sun, and owns the award-winning MacNeane House and Restaurant in Cavan; while Phelim Byrne needs little introduction in Wexford as he operates a highly successful professional catering services and cooking academy in Kerlogue.

Wexford Food Fair will be held on March 25 in White's Hotel from 4p.m. The cookery demonstrations start at 7p.m.

Admission to the demonstrations is by ticket only at a cost of €20.00, including a free glass of wine. Tickets are available at Wexford Arts Centre and all proceeds go to St. Iberius' National School.

Further details can be found on the website www.wexfordfoodfair.ie.